ABOUT THE WEBINAR

The COVID -19 pandemic has affected educational systems worldwide. Billions of learners have been affected due to the pandemic. The closure of educational institutions impact not only students, teachers, and families, but also have far-reaching economic and societal consequences. The impact was severe on the disadvantaged children. Although online mode is the only way to manage the teaching-learning activities yet it cannot be the replacement for education in terms of equality as well as quality.

However, it is high time for educational leaders to play a vital role. There is a popular English proverb that says “Cometh the hour, cometh the man” – the idea that the good leaders will come to the forefront during times of crisis. In fact, in the present situation, every stakeholder has to play a significant role to lead the education at his own level. The job of the leaders includes a communicator, supporter, problem-solver, and troubleshooter. Their role is not only to deal with the teaching-learning, assessment, and evaluation activities but also to administer the financial challenges. Moreover, psychologically affected people need to be addressed very carefully during the crisis. Good leaders know how to act appropriately to the situation to accomplish the organizational goals. The true leaders believe in action, not speeches. Ethical decision-making is central to leadership. In a time of crisis, an efficient and ethical leader takes into account the purpose of everyone who is concerned.

Keeping view the entire situation, a national level webinar has been planned to have a discussion and consultation of the issues related to the theme.
